THE CENTENNIAL OF THE AMERICAN CONGRESS.

Walter Allison and Richard K. Betts, of Philadelphia, accompanied by Senator Cameron and Representatives O'Neill and Myers, called on the President this morning and presented him with a copy of the memorial adopted by the Carpenter's Hall Society of the City and County of Philadelphia, Oct. 20, 1873, in relation to the Centennial Anniversary of the First American Congress. The memorial is as follows:

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress Assembled—We your memorialists respectfully represent that while we recognize the fact that our nation's freedom was declared in Independence Hall, yet the place where were heard the deliberate tones of a Hancock, the defiant voice of a Henry, and the persuasive eloquence of an Adams in the first American Congress, than whom a body of greater men never assembled together or crowned a nation's annals, and who bowed here in reverence as the first prayer was uttered in that Congress, deliberately avowing that to the oppressive acts of the mother country Americans never can submit, and the determination to part with their liberties only with their lives, so patriotically and faithfully adhered to, is held sacred by us as the nation's birthplace, and must be dear to every patriotic heart; and

WHEREAS, The near approach of the one hundredth anniversary of that memorable event renders it befitting that we the successors of those who freely offered this hall when even our time honored State House was closed against them, should commemorate the nation's advent by our official action; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Congress is invited to assemble in this hall on the fifth day of the ninth month, 1874, the one hundredth anniversary of the meeting of the first American Congress, and that such ceremonies take place as they in their wisdom shall deem best suited to that memorable occasion.

To the copy of the memorial given to the President was appended an invitation to him and his Cabinet to be present on that occasion. The President said it would give him great pleasure to attend, and that he would lay the invitation before the Cabinet. A copy of the memorial was to day presented to the Senate by Senator Cameron and by Representative Myers to the House of Representatives, where it was referred to the Centennial Committee.—N Y Tribune, Jan 30.

CHICAGO SKILLED TALENT

CHICAGO [illegible] AND SOME OF THEIR MOST [illegible] EXPLOITS

The home of Mr David Kelley on Michigan avenue near Twentieth street was entered by burglars while the family were holding a wedding reception down stairs. The visitors to the upper part of the house invited themselves in by way of the skylight. They did not dance and no refreshments were served. They presented themselves with diamonds and other jewelry as mementos of the happy occasion and silently withdrew without disturbing the other festivities.

A FELLOW FEELING

A short time subsequent to this the gentleman of the house while eating his dinner heard a ring at the door bell and dispatched the servant to answer the summons. She presently returned with a note which the gentleman leisurely read. It said: "Sir, your overcoat is not good enough for you. Call and get another." Upon going to the hall it was found that the messenger had vanished with all the garments that hung in the vestibule, and the advice was therefore found to be apropos. The cool customer passed the house the next day with the stolen overcoat decorating his person. He took off his hat and smiled with great gallantry to the girl who stood at the window. It is gratifying to record such instances of courtesy.

BEWARE OF CONVERSATION

A lady who desires to remain unknown was the recipient of a unique and elegant Christmas present, being nothing less than a diamond cross worth several thousand dollars. A few days ago she was displaying the jewel to some visitors and descanting upon its brilliancy, little dreaming that Messieurs Beppo and Guillimo were around when the tea bell rang. As the strong box was up stairs, the lady said carelessly, "I will leave the cross here until we return." Being warned by one of the guests that such a course was not prudent she said, "Then I will hide it here under the ... I'm not afraid." It is needless to add that when they returned to the room and sought the treasure it was found to have been laid up "where moth and rust corrupt and thieves break through and steal." She is a relative of Gov Beveridge, and blesses the day when he liberated him of the handy talents.

TWO FELONS

Miss Boone, daughter of Dr Boone, was a sufferer a few days ago from a felon on her hand. It seems there was another felon on hand at the time in which she was preparing a flax seed poultice for the one; the other made a noise in the adjoining closet, to which Miss Boone proceeded carrying a cup of medicine in her hand. Upon opening the door she was confronted by a villainous looking ruffian, who, deeming discretion a wise course under the circumstances, proceeded to depart hastily through the aperture in the roof. The young lady, weakened by suffering, made for the stairway leading down stairs, intending to rouse the family, but on the way her strength failed her and she fell fainting to the floor. The family were roused, however. A moment after, a neighbor from across the street rushed over and said there were two men hiding on top of the house. She saw them. As it was in the day time, no gentlemen were about, but the news flew round, and the ladies of the neighborhood congregated on the sidewalk and formed themselves into a committee on ways and means. After the meeting had been properly organized, one of the number was dispatched for a police officer, but in the mean time the burglars had become weary of the procrastination and had withdrawn. The scene at its height was very similar to that attending the capture of Bill Fagin.

RICHTER'S GRAND DREAM

THE WONDERS OF THE UNIVERSE

God called up from dreams a man into the vestibule of heaven, saying "Come thou hither and see the glories of My Kingdom." And to the angels that stood around His throne He said, "Take him! strip from him his robes of flesh, cleanse his vision, and put a new breath into his nostrils; only touch not with any change his human heart, the heart that weeps and trembles." It was done, and with a mighty angel for his guide the man stood ready for his infinite voyage, and from the terraces of Heaven, without sound or farewell, on a sudden they swept into infinite space. Sometimes, with the solemn flight of angel wings, they passed through the horrors of darkness, through wildernesses of death that divide the worlds of life; sometimes they passed over the thresholds that were quickening under prophetic motions from God. Then, from beyond distances that are counted only in Heaven, light dawned as through a shapeless film; by unutterable pace they passed a light; a light by unutterable pace passed them. In a moment the blaze of suns was upon them; in a moment the rush of planets was around them.

Then came eternities of twilight that revealed but were not revealed. On the right hand, on the left, towered gigantic constellations, that by self repetitions and answers from afar, that by counter positions, built up triumphal gateways, whose archways, whose architraves, horizontal, upright, raised and rose at altitude of spans that seemed ghostly from infinitude. Without measure were the architraves, beyond memory the gates, past number the archways. Within were stars that scaled eternities around; above was below and below was above to man stripped of gravitating body. Depth was swallowed up in height insurmountable, height in depth unfathomable. On a sudden, as thus they rode from infinity to infinity, on a sudden, as thus they tilted over abysmal worlds, a cry arose that systems more mysterious, that worlds more billowy, other lights, other depths were coming, were nearing, were at hand.

Then the man sighed and stopped, shuddered and wept. His overladen heart uttered itself in tears, and he said, "Angel, I will go no farther, for the spirit of man acheth with this infinity. Insufferable is the glory of God. Let me lie down and hide me in the grave from the persecution of the infinite, for end I see there is none." And from all the listening stars that shone around there issued a choral voice: "The man speaks truly. End is there none that ever yet we heard of." "End is there none?" the angel solemnly demanded. "Is there indeed no end, and is this the sorrow that kills you?" But no voice answered, that he might answer himself. Then the angel threw up his glorious hands to the heaven of heavens, saying, "End is there none to the Universe of God! Lo also there is no beginning."—Jean Paul Richter.

AN IMPORTANT INFRINGEMENT CASE DECIDED

The following article appeared in the Dayton [illegible]:

Most of our readers ... for a period of more than four years a suit has been in progress in the United States Court for the Southern District of Ohio ... James Leffel & Co of Springfield, Ohio, were plaintiffs and Barnett, Herrin & Co defendants, the suit being brought to restrain the defendants from infringing the patents of James Leffel in the manufacture of what is called the ... Leffel Wheel. This suit has attracted much attention, being one of the most severely contested, prolonged and complicated in the annals of patent litigation. The most eminent legal talent in the country has been employed on both sides, and every possible means has been exhausted by the defendants in attempting to ... the Leffel patent ... infringement ... of the case the leading mechanical experts of the country have been employed by the respective parties. After all this preliminary ... the amount of which ... approximately estimated at fifty thousand dollars, the case came up for final hearing nearly two weeks ago in Cincinnati.

After listening to arguments of counsel occupying some eight days, Judge Emmons of the United States Court (Judge Swing of the District Court concurring), in an able and exhaustive decision, fully and completely sustained the Leffel patents in every particular, absolutely confirming their validity, and pronouncing the defendants' wheel, ... known as the Thomas Leffel Wheel, ... infringement in all its parts upon the patent sustaining, without exception, every claim of the plaintiff.

A decree has been rendered in accordance with the above decision, granting an injunction forbidding the manufacture of the defendants' wheel, and the matter has been referred to a Master for the assessment of damages.

This case is one of the utmost importance, as it establishes the validity of claims covering about all the valuable improvements in modern turbine water wheels.

A STRANGE AFFAIR.

THE MASONS UNABLE TO RECOVER THE BODY OF GRAND MASTER FRENCH—STARTLING REVELATIONS IN REGARD TO THE INTERMENT OF PAUPERS IN THE POTTER'S FIELD

[Special Dispatch to the Chicago Tribune.]

NEW YORK, Jan 29—Strenuous efforts have been made by members of the United Order of Free Masons of this city to obtain possession of the remains of Nathaniel French, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Bahama Islands, who was beaten to death and robbed in this city several months ago and buried in the Potter's Field, in order that they might be interred in Greenwood with ceremonies peculiar to their Order. They applied to the Commissioners of Charities and Corrections for the body, but these officials evaded their inquiries and said that it was impossible for them to give up the remains. On being pressed for an answer why this was so they made the startling statement that the body was

BURIED AT THE BOTTOM OF A PIT,

In which were 600 other bodies, and that as no record was kept of the row in which the desired body was placed they could not deliver it to his friends. This has naturally excited intense indignation wherever known, and to-day a resolution was offered in the Council setting forth the manner of his death so far as known, and his burial, and recommending that a committee of three be appointed to investigate the case and also to report an ordinance which will prevent the recurrence of such

DISGRACEFUL PROCEEDINGS

On the part of the Commissioners of Charities. It was unanimously adopted. Though the Potter's Field is in a distant suburb of New York, to open this pit would seriously endanger the health of the inhabitants of the city, so it is not likely the Masons will have the opportunity to do honor to their departed brother.

THE CRIME OF CALEB CUSHING.—The New York World thus apologizes or defends the letter of Caleb Cushing to Jeff Davis:

The darkest offense which the malice of his enemies could rake out of the whole record of his long and active life is an act of kindness and friendship for a poor clerk who had served him faithfully and whom he was willing to put in the way of earning his bread with the people among whom he was born. True, that poor faithful obscure clerk was a secessionist, as were nearly all the people with whom he spent his childhood and received his education, and in an approaching civil war he preferred not to fight against his own kindred. Cushing did not send him with arms in his hand and recommend him as a soldier, but with no weapon but a pen, which he knew how to use in the humble capacity of a clerk and occasionally as a writer of articles in a periodical devoted to commerce and statistics. What an awful crime to give that poor unwarlike clerk a letter of introduction which might be of service to him in finding employment! Cushing did not make him a secessionist; he was already one by his Southern birth, education and connections. It was a crime of the same order as that of the lamented and loyal George D Prentice, who, when he could not dissuade his son from joining the rebellion, gave him a blanket and garments to protect him from the cold night air in which he would often have to sleep. Cushing's great disqualification for the Chief Justiceship is discovered to be an act of humanity to a poor peaceful young man who had faithfully served him as a clerk.

HISTORY OF THE CUSHING DAVIS LETTER

The latest story about that letter is thus told by a Boston gentleman. The letter was found with other papers soon after the surrender of Vicksburg. Jefferson Davis had a brother who lived on a plantation called Hurricane, between Vicksburg and Natchez, and at his brother's were all the private papers of the Confederate President covering a period of twenty years or more. At the time Farragut ran the blockade at Port Hudson some of the vessels came up to Vicksburg and Natchez. As they did so the rebels moved their President's papers from Hurricane to a place about five miles from Jackson, on the Vicksburg road. After Vicksburg was surrendered General Sherman followed up Johnson's army, and it was during the second siege of Jackson that the letter was found. The second brigade of one of the divisions of McPherson's corps was acting as a reserve, being stationed near the house where these papers were stored. Some of the men of an Illinois regiment belonging to it came one day in their ramblings to this house, and without much ceremony entered it. While they were exploring it a negro woman who was there pointed to a certain room and cautioned them not to enter it, and inquiry elicited the fact that it was the President's. The soldiers very promptly knocked open the door, and in less than fifteen minutes all the private papers of His Excellency were strewn around the room. This included all his correspondence, and in this was the epistle sent to him by Mr Cushing. It may be mentioned, to show the private nature of the papers, that among them was his commission as Secretary of War under President Pierce, also his commission as Colonel of a Mississippi regiment in the Mexican War. The soldier who secured the Secretary's commission was offered $800 for it, but he refused to let it go. Among these papers was also the President's certificate as a member of a lodge of Free Masons or Odd Fellows. Soon after this time some of the officers of the brigade gathered together all the papers that had not been carried off, and they were sent to Washington, where they were stored, probably, with the so called rebel archives.

Thurlow Weed thinks the $75,000 paid for rebel archives has proved a good investment in furnishing evidence, he says, which preserves the Bench of the Supreme Court from the dishonor and the American people from the mortification of seeing Caleb Cushing made Chief Justice. These archives rendered a service worth five times their cost. Would it not be well, in view of other possibilities, to give the whole people an opportunity to read the rebel secrets which Senator Sargent so fortunately had his attention called to? The Congressional printing house could not be more advantageously employed than in responding to a resolution calling for the secret history of rebellion.

A TABLE ORNAMENT.—The New York Mail says that at an English breakfast party at Delmonico's a few days ago, given in honor of a gentleman on the eve of sailing for Europe, the center floral ornament of the table was a full bark rigged steamer composed entirely of rosebuds, with the exception of the sails, which were of white satin, and the funnel, which was of red pasteboard in imitation of the Cunard line. As the dinner terminated a tiny bell sounded on deck and a flag was run up to the masthead, upon which was written Bon Voyage.

Now let us adjourn, said Ignatius

A CHILD ACCIDENTALLY HUNG.—A Kankakee (Ill) dispatch, of Jan 22d, says:

The sad intelligence of the accidental death by hanging of a little son of Chas Hoevet, of Supervisor's town, Yellow Head, has just been made known. He was amusing his brothers and sisters by twisting a towel around his neck in imitation of hanging, and in turning around his feet slipped. He fell the length of the towel, which was firmly attached to a roller. His neck was instantly broken.

FORTY SIX THOUSAND DOLLARS WORTH OF CORNS.—A novel claim has been presented to Congress by a Dr Zacharie, a chiropodist, who alleges that he removed $46,000 worth of corns from the white feet of our patriotic soldiers during the late war. The testimony of a number of Federal officers is adduced in support of the claim. Every Congressman who suffers from corns is expected to vote for it. Stranger and more absurd claims than this have been allowed by Congress.

THE SUPREME COURT.—A Washington dispatch of Jan 29th says: The Supreme Court will take a recess of a month from Friday next, reassembling with Chief Justice Waite at its head on the first Monday of March. During its session it has reduced its docket by about 200 cases, being a third more than it has ever decided at a full term. The calendar, notwithstanding the two months added to the term, has ... MOVING ON

The doctrine of the right of the Legislature to regulate the rates of charges for carrying freight and passengers on the railway having become so far settled that even the railway organs avoid any reference to it as a doubtful question, the work of making this principle a potential element in the solution of the problem of the relative rights of the people and the monopolies, is going actively and steadily forward. Several of the States of the North as we have mentioned before, have passed laws intended to secure the interests of the masses against unreasonable exactions by the railway companies. These laws differ from each other in many respects. The subject being entirely new so far as concerns the practical application in detail of the remedy to the evil in every form that it can possibly assume it could not be expected that the same views would obtain everywhere as to what is a just tariff, what are proper penalties for violations of the law what methods of procedure are best adapted to secure obedience, &c Uniformity on these subjects will be attained only through experiment It can come only by gradual assimilation

It appears to us, and we cannot but think this will be the view of most intelligent readers, that Mr Freeman's bill, which has been passed by one branch of the California Legislature, and will without doubt be passed by the other adopts the course least liable to objection of all the laws on the subject which have been brought forward We are not speaking now of the question whether or not the rates of freight fixed by this act are equitable and just, but of the plan upon which the bill is drawn and the ideas that underlie its mode of adjustment

It is manifest that the charge for carrying freights a short distance ought to be higher, relatively, than for a long distance because the expense of handling—loading and unloading—counts as much for one mile as for a thousand It is plain, also, that very bulky articles should pay more, according to weight than those which being more compact, occupy less space in the cars, that dangerous articles, such as gunpowder etc, requiring extraordinary care in their handling and stowing, should pay more than harmless merchandise There are various other considerations that may affect the question of what is equitable in every case Mr Freeman seems to have given the subject so thorough a study that none of these considerations have escaped his attention and his bill makes provision for each case in accordance with what natural justice would suggest While it reduces the rates of transportation very considerably both on passengers and freight, its draughtsman seems to have guarded as sedulously against the introduction of any feature that that would operate unjustly upon the railway companies as against any that would give the companies undue advantages over the people

We have published the text of this law in the OREGONIAN, so that every reader may examine it for himself The question with which it deals is or ought to be the paramount question in this State, at the approaching election of legislators It is a question that directly concerns every citizen of the State, and is of infinitely greater moment to them than any merely partisan issue that can be raised The public mind of this State is sufficiently awakened on this subject in a general way but the time for action is now so near at hand, that the thoughts of our people should begin to descend into details They must elaborate some plan of action and be prepared to press its adoption upon the Legislature It will not do to dwell always in the light atmosphere of general principles In the application of these principles to the practical affairs of daily life consists their power to benefit mankind and this application requires consideration in detail

As we remarked above, we do not propose at this time to discuss the question whether the rates fixed in Mr Freeman's bill are the most nearly just that could be devised for all parties concerned, nor whether a rate that would be equitable in California would be equally so in Oregon We only say he has proceeded on the correct basis and if his tariff of charges shall prove unjust in any particular, in practice it will be an easy matter to correct it The rates allowed by this bill are considerably below those charged on the roads in Oregon The adoption of those rates here would reduce our Oregon tariff on passengers between twenty five and thirty three per cent., and nearly the same on freight, taking all the different classes into account.

THE CAMPAIGN

This is a significant heading, isn't it? The people of Oregon are soon to enter upon a political campaign which is to end on the first Monday of June in a general election for State and county officers and for a member of Congress Therefore under such a caption as The Campaign, one has a right to expect something to the point Well, this is the caption of a leading editorial article in the Jacksonville Sentinel, one of the leading papers of the State and hitherto one of the straitest of Republican party organs And what says the Sentinel of the campaign? Read what it says

> The different parties and political combinations throughout the State are beginning to move and from the signs of the times we are fast approaching a lively campaign We are pleased to see so early in the fight such a large number of men, who have heretofore been strict party men breaking off from the old and tyrannical thralldom of party ties, and manifest a disposition to be free men
> The people are rapidly learning that it behooves them to look to their own interests and that of the country before they attach themselves to any party Mere names have ceased to have any charms by which the public eye has been so long blinded and political tricksters have about run their last race
>
> To day nearly every voter is inquiring "How shall I vote to promote my own interest and serve my country best?" The old issues are gone and have carried with them the prejudices they engendered New ones are springing up which more directly affect the interest of each citizen Under these circumstances it is natural for the people to grow slack in their party allegiance and turn their attention to that which most interests them at home The perpetuity of the Union is no longer a doubtful question, but has become if not an immutable fact so nearly so that it is no more questioned than the rising of to-morrow's sun Hence the old saying of the politician, that "he knows no North no South no East no West" has become obsolete because firmly cemented as one separate divisions no longer exist
>
> Every farmer and mechanic is now anxiously inquiring what is best to be done to bring thrift and prosperity at home and this is the idea that will rule the coming campaign The old saying that "reform begins at home" is beginning to be understood in its true light and the realization of which will bring law order and happiness to every fireside The past has demonstrated the fact that right and justice are eternal principals and must prevail and what is ominous of a better future the people recognize the fact more and more each succeeding day The laboring men feel that they are no longer slaves but freemen in the highest sense of the term
> The Granges and laboring societies are so many evidences that the masses are not fools but alive to thought and action Every local Grange is an unimpeachable witness that the people of that locality have thoughts that are ripening into action The flag of industry and freedom is waving from every housetop throughout this mighty nation as so many insignias of intelligence

So another of the party organs breaks the traces and declares for principle above party Leaf by leaf the roses fall One by one the leading newspapers step out of the quagmire of partyism and take their places on the solid ground of principle They will find the change a most fortunate one not only because the consciousness of doing service in a righteous cause is always a source of happiness, but also because honest journalism is acceptable to an honest people, and will surely receive their liberal support The Sentinel says the public can no longer be blinded by "mere names," and that "political tricksters have about run their last race" Amen! Long be it their last!

THE BULLETIN'S CHARGES AGAINST JUDGE DEADY

Our remarks upon the baseness and ingratitude of the course pursued by the Bulletin toward Judge Deady, must have touched some abnormally sensitive spot on the epidermis of the White Elephant alias the Custom-House editor—all the prominent members of the ring have aliases, you know—if we are to judge by his response He raves and froths like a maniac Really, we had no thought of throwing the fellow into such a spasm, or we should have handled him more gingerly And now, having wounded him more deeply than we intended, we feel like saying something to soothe his spirits and heal the sore on his cuticle, only we don't exactly know what to say We have tried our "level best" to think of something complimentary that we could say of him without committing the sin that cost Mr and Mrs Ananias their lives and we have been forced to give it up in despair If ever hereafter we happen to think of any good thing that can be said about Scott without telling a lie, we shall say it—say it twice Our word for that

But the thing for which we administered to him the castigation which so upset his wits still remains unexplained, except as we explained it at the time We said the reason the ring were so bitter against Judge Deady, and the cause of the Custom-House editor's malice toward him, was that he was so stiff in his ideas of official duty that the ring could not approach him and that he stood in the way of the accomplishment by the ring of their corrupt purposes What says the Bulletin about it? It says Judge Deady claims to be a superior creature, and to "sit on lofty heights of justice and morality" Wherefore the Bulletin assails him with the venom of a personal enemy, and exhausts the billingsgate vocabulary in heaping vile epithets upon him

In the name of common decency what is there wrong in a judge of a court of high jurisdiction insisting on being above the level of a ring of bribers and repeaters in political matters? What is there offensive in his insisting upon sitting upon a moral height that is far above the approach of these scurvy fellows Sits on a moral height indeed! Where ought a judge to sit? And who should sit on such a moral height if not the judges of our courts?

But the bribers' organ makes the case still plainer, and confirms still further what we said about the motives that prompted its attack upon Judge Deady? It says "He has said that he intended to do what was in his power to 'break up the ring!'" This is the gravamen of the case against Judge Deady The head and front of his offending is that he is unfriendly to the ring and his action in the bribery cases in enforcing the law against the members of that model organization was inimical to their interests and practices That is all the point the Bulletin attempts to make, and it might as well have omitted that for we have stated it correctly before Of course the bribers' organ endeavors to cover up the truth with wordy declamation but what we have here noticed are the only definite charges it pretends to bring Could anything be more utterly flimsy and contemptible?

The Bulletin expresses the opinion that it has probed Judge Deady "to the quick" Possibly it has We can not speak from personal knowledge for we have not met the Judge, nor had any communication with him since the [illegible] attack was made upon him It is but natural, however for a gentleman who is quietly and faithfully discharging his duties as a public servant to feel aggrieved at being made the target of such malicious shafts as those that have been aimed at Judge Deady by the editor of the Bulletin And it is especially grievous when in addition to the injustice and mendacity of the attack the person assailed is one to whom the assailant owes [illegible] under the highest obligation of gratitude Hence we think the Bulletin is probably correct in supposing Judge Deady [illegible] to be insensible to its calumnies

The afflicted people of Memphis have [illegible] of their numerous scandals which [illegible] the defaulting [illegible] Capt Lenau [illegible] Secretary of the H[illegible] Association [illegible] recently arrested, at the instance of his wife on a charge of embezzlement [illegible] Association After a partial examination he has been discharged there being no evidence to sustain the accusation It was shown that he had received over $128 000 and disbursed about $80 000 Defendant's books showed a discrepancy of only $[illegible] which was [illegible] His wife has confessed that she was prompted solely by jealousy in making the charge

LOOK AT CALIFORNIA

The action of the California Legislature on the subject of freight and passenger tariffs on railways shows that the movement of the people to throw off the trammels of party politics and plant themselves on the ground of exact equality before the law, between rich and poor between individual and combined effort is guided with steady hands and by intelligent brains It is no swaying up and down of a popular mind moved by passion to extreme measures or ready to overturn the laws of the country in a mad dream of universal happiness It is not a reign of Communism wherein the rewards of industry and enterprise are to be wrested from the hands of those who have fairly earned them and distributed among the turbulent mob It is the steady firm self-possessed march of an intelligent people to their legitimate place in the administration of public affairs It is the most effectual protest that can be raised against every species of corruption in making or executing the laws that govern a free country It is a demand of the people for an equal chance for all in the struggle for comfort and competency. And this action of California also gives the unanswerable contradiction to those who have declared the promises of reform made by those who have promoted this movement were a delusion and a sham The success of this popular uprising is the harbinger of reform and the abuses that have made the movement necessary cannot survive its ascendency The people of Oregon may behold in California an example of the first fruits of political independence and official honesty

"History repeats itself" says a vulgar adage Witness this incident narrated by a Chicago paper W C Coleman disappeared some weeks since with Miss Lester a teacher in the Female High School of Louisville He took away with him some $4 000 leaving many debts behind It is thought the two have gone to Europe There is plenty of room for a pun there, but we haven't the heart for that sort of thing We are absorbed in reflecting upon how much better it would have been for Coleman (not the school ma'am) had he gone West Here this man had all the ingredients of a first-class "Christian statesman" of the period—the $4 000 schoolma'am, many debts behind etc And yet he thrust them ruthlessly aside as who should say Ballston Spa is better than San Luis Obispo and the Land tag is more to be desired than the Senate It is provoking to think how narrowly he escaped an endorsement and a possible "vindication" But some men never will profit by the experience of others

A novel question relating to the right of counties to establish and maintain high schools by tax under the laws of Michigan is now before the Circuit Court for Kalamazoo county in that State The plaintiff Hon Charles E Stuart of Kalamazoo brings suit to enjoin the Board of Education for that county from collecting taxes to support the Kalamazoo High School His case is that the levying and collecting of general taxes for the support of schools in which ancient or modern languages except English, are taught, are illegal that the money to defray the expenses of supporting such schools must under the law, be raised by rate bills, the pupils paying tuition fees Leading counsel have been engaged on both sides and the result is awaited with much interest by the friends of education in Michigan

WEDNESDAY MORNING FEB 11 1874

CITY.

RAID ON THE JOHNS.—During Monday afternoon and evening the police gathered up 23 Chinamen who were found guilty of violating the ordinance which passed the Council last week relative to splitting and sawing wood on the sidewalks. These fellows were escorted to the city jail and notwithstanding their protestation of innocence and repeated no sabes were lodged there for the night. Yesterday when the matter came up for examination in the Police Court there arose great difficulty among the officers making the arrests about the identification of the guilty parties. Each officer when called upon to point out the Chinaman he had arrested could not always do so with that degree of positiveness which would warrant him in swearing to the identification of the parties. After considerable trouble in this regard the difficulty was bridged over however by the affirmation of all the officers that the parties that they had arrested were sawing wood on the sidewalks at the time of being taken into custody and the whole number corresponding the crowd was called upon to plead. They pleaded ignorance of the law in their own vernacular which was interpreted into English and the whole party being adjudged guilty were sentenced to pay a fine of $5 each and in default of payment to be committed to jail for the period of two days.

ANOTHER VICTIM.—Boys of Portland with all their getings of knowledge as suggested by Holy Writ, have neglected to learn one very important piece of information which is that it is not conducive to good health to play with powder. Yesterday a small boy, residing in the southern portion of the city, was engaged in experimenting with the explosive substance when it went off before he was ready; powder always plays such unkind tricks. Well this philosophic young fellow didn't make a success of the experiment with the exception that he ornamented his features in the most approved style. His hands also came in for a share of the unhappy results. The precise extent of the boy's injuries and his name we have been unable to learn. Should this young man with the inquiring bent of mind recover he will have strong proofs of the explosive force of powder every time he looks at a mirror.

HAS ITS EFFECT.—The late raid made by the guardians of peace on the Chinamen of the city for violation of the ordinance prohibiting them from sawing or splitting wood on the sidewalks has not been barren of good fruits. Although John pretends that he does not imbibe the spirit and significance of the ordinance yet he turns to profit the examples furnished by his less fortunate countrymen who have been arrested for infractions of the law and wisely avoids splitting wood on the sidewalk. Yesterday afternoon not a pair of the buck saw was to be seen working on the sidewalk. In some instances they had constructed a temporary platform of plank out from the sidewalk on which wood was being sawed and split. A few more such swoops as were made Monday afternoon will effectually subdue the Chinamen and this most excellent ordinance will be carefully observed for the future.

SUITS FOR DAMAGES.—At the present term of the Circuit Court, there are pending two suits for damages claimed to have been sustained by reason of defamation of character. One is a suit instituted by M Lichtenstein against A [illegible]ward, claiming damages in the sum of [illegible]000. In this suit the plaintiff alleges that the defendant accused the former of having stolen a pistol or of having purchased a pistol which the plaintiff knew had been purloined, which statement seriously damaged his business character in the community. This suit will probably be called at an early day of the term. The other suit is also of a similar nature—defamation of character—and the amount sued for is $10 000. The plaintiff in this case is Mrs J Frasgu, and the defendant is Mrs B [illegible]ert.

RUNAWAY.—Notwithstanding runaways are daily affairs Portland is able to indulge in such luxuries every few days. Yesterday a countryman's team became frightened, and started up First street at a rate considerably in advance of that fixed by ordinance—six miles an hour. A pile of lumber happened to be in the way and about two-thirds of the wagon was left behind to explain matters while the team and a small fraction of the vehicle went on. The owner followed at a respectable distance and after a three-mile chase captured the fugitives. The blacksmith says that $40 will fix the job. The countryman concludes that he will hitch his horses when he comes into the city again.

BROKE DOWN.—On Monday as a large and heavily loaded truck was being driven across the street one of the axle-trees broke down just as the team was crossing the street-railroad track. There was a large quantity of lumber on the truck which had to be transferred to another and then the disabled vehicle moved away. This required some time, during which the street cars were compelled to suspend trips much to the discomfiture of the drivers.

PURCHASED.—The little tug Sedalia which was built last summer at Astoria by the Spedden Bros has we learn recently been purchased by Mr J C Fox, formerly of the Willamette Iron Works. It is the intention of the present owner to enlarge the working capacity of the machinery. The boat will run in and about the mouth of the Columbia, and engage in a general towing business.

CALLED AWAY.—Judge Denny received a telegram last Saturday from Albany which stated that his mother was very ill. In response to the summons, he left here at once. He remained at the sick bed of his mother until Monday, when he returned to this city. This circumstance accounts for his absence from Portland and also for there being no court on that day.

ASSOCIATION OF GRANGES.—The Oregon Union Association of Granges of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry met yesterday at the Masonic Hall East Portland, at one o'clock P M for the transaction of business. As the proceedings of this body were of a secret character and pertain particularly to the private workings of the Order, we are not able to lay them before our readers.

THE NEW BOARD.—To morrow evening the new Board of Delegates of the Portland Fire Department will hold their first meeting at the Police Court room for the purpose of effecting an organization. Among other business to be transacted will be the election of a President, Secretary and Treasurer for the ensuing year. A full attendance is desired.

CHINESE NEW YEAR.—The Celestials of the city are making vigorous preparations to celebrate in a becoming manner their New Year, which will commence on next Monday. In [illegible] Jo[illegible] and the cra[illegible]ling [illegible] fire crackers and bombs will be extensively in [illegible] for [illegible] days.

INSANE.—Deputy Sheriff [illegible] of [illegible] brought down yesterday from [illegible] an insane man named Michael [illegible] who was placed at once in the asylum.

SOCIABLE.—There will be a sociable held at the [illegible] church this evening. Refreshments will be served by the ladies and a pleasant time is assured all attending.

ADMITTED.—Patrick Lynch, a native of Ireland was admitted to citizenship yesterday in the [illegible] Court.

DEATH FROM APOPLEXY.

Passengers on board the steamer Oriflamme which arrived here yesterday morning about 5 o clock were startled by the discovery of the lifeless body of Mr Moses B Almy in one of the staterooms. The vessel had just arrived at the wharf and was being made fast when the discovery was made. Mr Cas Zegler the runner for the Cosmopolitan Hotel knew the deceased and was aware that he came up on the steamer. On ascertaining what room Mr Almy occupied Zegler knocked at the door. He received no answer but continued to rap supposing that the occupant was in bed at that early hour. Still meeting with no response he opened the door and to his dismay discovered Mr Almy lying across the bed to all appearances lifeless. The alarm was given and the body brought out of the stateroom and laid down on the table in the cabin. Dr Fetch a physician who was among the passengers was instantly summoned and in the meantime the body was vigorously rubbed and restoratives applied all however to no purpose. After examining the body a few moments Dr Fetch pronounced life extinct. Death could not have occurred prior to the landing of the body more than an hour as perceptible warmth was discovered under the arms. Mr Almy was in perfect health from the day he left San Francisco until Monday evening. During the voyage he appeared to be in fine spirits and was heard to frequently remark that he never felt better. On Monday evening he was as cheerful and conversational as usual and up to about 8 o clock that evening was engaged in chatting and laughing with his friends. He retired to his berth a little after 8 o'clock and nothing more was seen of him until his lifeless body was found. The swift messenger must have come suddenly and performed its work noiselessly as the watch boy who was in the cabin all the time did not hear anything during the night. On feeling the hand of death the victim had started to get out of bed, and had partially succeeded in arising when he doubtless fell back and died without a struggle.

Few men engaged in mercantile pursuits were better known on the Pacific coast in business circles than Mr Almy. He has resided for many years in California and was [illegible] his friends and associates as an old forty niner. Years ago he was prominently connected with the house of R H Brewster & Co, of San Francisco, wholesale grocers. Subsequently he was identified with the firm of S H Meeker & Co. For several years and up to the time of his death Mr Almy was traveling agent for the large firm of liquor dealers Wilmerding, Kellogg & Co. He was a genial whole souled man and possessed of many noble qualities of heart and mind and had numerous friends in this city. At the time of his death Mr. Almy was in the 56th year of his age. He was unmarried and was a native of Newport R I, where a number of his relatives reside. Coroner Dryer was notified yesterday morning of the occurrence and proceeded at once to the steamer to hold an inquest. The following gentlemen were summoned as jurors: B B Acker H Cooke, J C Carroll W W Lappeus H L Leonard, W W Neilson. Various witnesses were examined, and all the facts in the case elicited. Dr C G Strong who was summoned to examine the body also gave his medical opinion as to the causes of death, which was to the effect that the person had died from apoplexy. From all the circumstances the jury rendered the following verdict:

"We, the jury summoned to inquire into the death of Moses B Almy, whose body now lies before us, do find that deceased came to his death from natural causes, produced by apoplexy."

The remains have been incased in a metallic coffin, and will be sent to San Francisco on the steamer.

CLOSING LECTURE.

The closing lecture of the course given by Prof Condon on geology and kindred subjects, in this city, was delivered last evening to a large and intelligent audience. The subject of the evening was the consistency of scientific truth, especially geology, with revealed religion, and it was handled in a most thorough and logical manner. The fallacy of literally interpreting the Scriptures was clearly shown by various illustrations from the book itself. The boundary line between revealed truth and inductive science was clearly drawn and the result of trying to account for facts found on one side of this line, by reasoning from facts existing in the other department it was shown, would be utter confusion. God in the Bible only intended to teach man one thing and that was the way of salvation. This was done fully and perfectly in the language which men then understood. But he did not even correct the imperfect ideas which were then entertained concerning the facts of chronology, history, astronomy geography or any other science.

We regret on behalf of those who did not attend, that the Professor declines to publish this lecture entire as it is certainly a fine production and would be read with interest by all who desire to investigate this subject thoroughly.

ORGANIZATION OF THE CLACKAMAS CO EQUAL RIGHTS CLUB

Monday evening 9th inst the Court House at Oregon City was filled to overflowing upon the occasion of the permanent organization of the friends of justice and reform.

Mr Sarah McCown was elected Chairman pro tem.

The minutes of a preliminary meeting were read and approved.

Mrs Miranda S Buck presented the report of the Canvassing Committee showing that the following persons had pledged themselves to support our organization favoring Impartial Suffrage:

Mrs S Augusta Chase Mr Heman Buck Mrs Miranda S Buck Mrs Susan Meldrum Mr W Carey Johnson Mrs J DeVore Johnson Mrs Olive McCord Mr H I Bacon Rev Martin Judy Miss Pet Miller Mrs Mary Edmunds Miss Emma Chase Miss Amy Kerns Mrs Mary White Mrs Sarah McCown Dr J W Norris Mr J P Ward Mr Jacob Nortman Mrs Jacob Nortman Mrs H Pease Mrs J I Clarke, Miss Ella Bacon, Mr John Nortman Mr J Shubam Mr D T Rogers Mr Rodney Tompkins Mrs V Athey Mr N Athey Miss Sarah Athey Mrs F Cochran, Mr Hiram Cochran Mr James M Moore Mr George Newman Miss Alice Hunsaker Miss Mollie Beatie, Mr J J Barlow, Miss Julia Johnson Mr T J Matlock Mrs J L Barlow Miss Julia Johnson, Mr T J Matlock Mrs H A Matlock Mr S A Mills, Mr W A Mills, Mrs Mary Lapps Mr Daniel Talbert Mr W H Phillips Mr A I Jones Mr Jay Phillips.

Many other persons had expressed themselves as favorable to the movement. Accessions were expected as soon as the outside precincts were heard from.

An explanation of the views and experience of Mrs Fannie Cochran relative to woman in public life was read.

The Chairman of the Committee on Constitution and By Laws submitted forms, which were adopted.

The Constitution Art I provides that the organization shall be known as the Clackamas County Equal Rights Club.

Art II reads as follows:

The objects of this Club shall be first the recognition of the Equal Political Rights of all classes of citizens regardless of sex; secondly the use of all laudable means to secure the exercise of these rights; thirdly, the moral and mental improvement of the members of the Club the community and human race; fourthly the subserviency of the personal interests of the members of the Club as far as connected with the objects of the Club.

Hon W Carey Johnson, Mrs W W Buck, Prof P Baumgras Mrs Sarah McCown and E L Eastham Esq addressed the meeting upon the rights and disabilities of woman, the justice and necessity of impartial suffrage &c.

The following additional signatures were obtained from the audience: Mr E I Eastham Miss Jennie Barlow Mrs W W Buck Miss Sarah J Thacher, G J Hurley C Olive Albright F Wesley Gearnman, Miss Emma Harrington Mr Wm J Whitlock and others.

The following persons were elected as delegates to the Oregon State Woman Suffrage Association: Mrs Sarah McCown Mrs Miranda Buck, Miss Julia Johnson, Mrs S Augusta Chase Mrs A O Harding Mr W Carey Johnson, Mrs J DeVore Johnson Hon S A Mills.

A resolution offered by Rev Martin Judy was adopted, requesting the publication of the proceedings of the meeting in the DAILY OREGONIAN, Daily Bulletin, New Northwest and Oregon City Enterprise.

It was announced that notice would be given of the next meeting when permanent officers will be elected.

On motion the meeting adjourned.

DUKE ALEXIS' VISIT

AN INDIGNANT NEBRASKAN TAKES ISSUE WITH THE ROYAL AUTHOR

WASHINGTON D C Jan 26 1874

To the Editor of the Chronicle: In your issue of Sunday last in a review of the Duke's new book upon his recent visit to America, occurs the following extract from the same:

Equal amusing is the account of his reception at Omaha in Nebraska where a member of the Legislature congratulated him on the successes of his father in the war with France. Another legislator of that State wanted to know if it was always cold in Russia.

Now, sir as a resident of the Junior State and a defender of the intelligence of our Legislative body I hasten to pronounce the above wholly without foundation or even a semblance of truth. He was not met at Omaha or elsewhere by the Legislature of the State but he and General Sheridan were entertained by a reception at the residence of ex-Governor Alvin Saunders which the Duke pronounced at the time one of the most pleasing entertainments offe[illegible]

[illegible] ALL THE LEGATION PEOPLE LOOK AND WHAT THEY ALL DO

[illegible] the N Y Times

One of the most important elements of Washington society is the diplomatic corps The foreign representatives here are in the main [illegible] pleasing manners and with [illegible] exception , have more abundant leisure for the small cares of society than probably any other class Washington is now [illegible] regarded by the diplomatic people the world over as a species of Botany Bay a sort of purgatory if you like Several countries are represented by men of well established reputation who have had scope for the exercise of their diplomatic skill Take the cases of Spain and England for instance But here [illegible] for the greater part novices who are taking their first lessons in diplomacy and the poorer members of distinguished families where they may find excellent alliances In [illegible] in looking over the Ministers alone one finds that fully one-half of them are bachelors Then the numerous Secretaries and attaches are nearly all single men When this fact is remembered, one can no longer wonder why they are so popular The diplomats as a class are very agreeable people They are unaffected in their manners, and the majority of them who are purely ornamental recognize as well as any one what thorough humbugs they are but they play their parts as gravely as if the welfare of the nations they represent depended upon their individual shoulders

The morals of the average diplomat are of the easy school of the European Continent but here in Washington the limits are so narrow, they have the eyes of the world to such an extent upon them that they do not act up to the freedom of their ideas, unless it is when they visit New York, which is so conveniently near that the visits of the various members of the corps to the Metropolis of America are not few and far between but oft repeated

New York, with all its gayeties, and the whirl of life that precludes attention to the actions of private individuals offers a tempting escape, when the monotonous round of visits and society espionage of Washington become wearisome

The largest legation here is the Spanish consisting of eight members, the next is the British and the French Legation ranks third in point of number The British Government is the most liberal in the treatment of its representative, Sir Edward Thornton It pays for the rent of his house and is now building an elegant residence at the cost of $100,000 in Connecticut avenue which is to be, in future for the exclusive use of the British Legation The style of living of the foreign representatives is quite plain as the majority of them are not wealthy men However to this there are exceptions The Marquis De Noailles keeps up or rather has kept up a large establishment here for in a few days it will be a thing of the past Probably his official salary just about paid for the rent of his house in Washington and cottage in Newport The British Minister too lives in excellent style and entertains very elegantly during the season

The Austrian Legation is made up of Minister and First Secretary. The Minister, Baron Charles Lederer is a man of agreeable but rather pompous manners He has been in Washington since September 4, 1868—in fact [illegible] next to Sir Edward Thornton in point of time spent here as a Minister If Sir Edward were to leave he would become the Dean of the Diplomatic Corps. Baron Lederer may be a great diplomatic genius but as he has never had an opportunity to display his powers, the [illegible] cannot as yet estimate the full extent of his diplomatic capacity His First Secretary, Mr Hengelmueller De Hengervar, has won fame in Washington not so much by the display of great diplomatic talent as by his handsome face and his wearing the gorgeous full dress of the Hungarians upon state occasions, which then makes him the observed of all observers A sky blue velvet suit trimmed with fur and gold lace, one would fancy would constitute a striking make-up

The French Legation consists of a Minister, one Secretary one attache, and a Chancellor The Marquis de Noailles is of a high Legitimist family a son of the Duke of that name and descended from Louis XIV and Mme de Maintenon He has much literary taste and [illegible] in a style that might be expected of a family celebrated for its wealth and refinement The Marquis speaks English with the greatest fluency, and if it were not for his occasional slight accent, one would not detect that he is a foreigner He has, in company with his charming wife, given some of the [illegible] entertainments since his arrival here July 2[illegible] 1872) According to the diplomatic code [illegible] foreign representatives, during their [illegible] year at any post, need not give entertainments But the Marquis did not take advantage of this conventional exemption, but reciprocated society's attentions from the first He leaves for France on his way to Rome, where he is to be stationed as Minister, on the [illegible] The departure of the French [illegible] and his wife will be a loss to Washington society, especially to the diplomatic [illegible] made the house of the Marquis one of the very few and most pleasant rallying points in the dullest of capitals M Bar[illegible] who is to take the place of the Marquis, [illegible] in about six weeks Meanwhile, Count Clermont Tonnerre, the first Secretary [illegible] who arrived in this country a [illegible] will act as Charge d Affaires

The British Legation consists of a Minister, three Secretaries and two attaches Sir Edward Thornton, the Minister, is a thin, tall [illegible] of about sixty of very dignified manners He is, however, very affable and [illegible] easily approached as the average member of the diplomatic corps He is regarded [illegible] a man eminently respectable and [illegible] in his actions. He lives in an elegant house in I street, where his wife, Lady Thornton and two daughters entertain their [illegible] in a way that has made for them numerous friends Sir Edward is one of the [illegible] pedestrians in the district and thinks nothing of taking a little walk of ten miles or [illegible] every day Of the six members of the British Legation there were three married and three single but the number of bachelors has been recently decreased by the marriage of Mr Oswald Charlton, an attache

In the Spanish Legation, besides the Minister there are three Secretaries and four attaches and yet this is the hardest worked Legation in Washington, thanks to the exertions of the Cuban patriots and the consequent complications The Spanish Minister, Admiral Polo de Bernabe, is a very pleasant looking gentleman, of about fifty years of age. He speaks English very fluently and in appearance would be taken for an English or American naval officer He lives in very good style, but as all his family is in Spain, with the exception of a son who is an attache of the Legation of course he does not give formal receptions His first Secretary, Mr Potestad, is considered a gentleman of first-rate abilities He has an American wife and is in all essentials an American having in fact been born in this country and lived here for a great many years

The Russian Legation is equal in point of number to the French The Russian Minister Baron D Offenberg is an old bachelor of about 60 years of age. He speaks English with tolerable fluency, and is fond of good living He is a kind, benevolent old gentleman and deservedly popular

The Japanese Legation excites the most comment Mr. Arinori Mori, the Charge d'Affaires is at present away in his native Japan on leave of absence, and Mr Goro Yano fills his place There are at present three members of this Legation, Yano Assano and Samro Takaki, They go out a good deal in society but not even here where outlandish people with outlandish titles, are all the rage, are they very popular They stand about as wall flowers, with a timid look in their eyes and a sad, deprecatory smile, as if they were lost in a strange world All of the members of the Legation are very diminutive, and very active in their movements They wear the English dress and speak our language tolerably well Yano the Charge d'Affaires ad interim, is a new comer He has a wife with him, whom none of the diplomatic people have ever seen Yano has kept her completely hidden since her arrival here and there is the greatest curiosity to see what Mrs Yano is like The Japanese interests are very likely to suffer to a great extent in this country owing to the fact that the House in this city is divided against itself and must therefore fall Mr Takaki became Charge d'Affaires when Mori went away and naturally expected to remain so But the iron entered into his soul when the despotic home Government sent out Mr Yano to act in this capacity This was such a great blow to Takaki's pride that he left the house of the Legation and is now rooming out near the Georgetown Cemetery in whose surroundings he finds sympathy with his gloomy thoughts The funniest member of the Japanese Legation is Mr Hangro [illegible] who is a trifle over four feet in height He looks like one of the elfs that [illegible] Colonel Grub He was at the reception of the Secretary of State the other day When the time came for refreshments the usual rush began and little Mr Assano would have fared badly had not a hearty, benevolent-looking old gentleman caught him up as if he were a baby and passed him over the heads of the crowd But Mr Assano is by no means a baby in years but a married man with responsibilities The benevolent old gentleman above mentioned [illegible] an American who seems to be a great friend of the [illegible] special admirer of [illegible] receptions [illegible] with the [illegible] One evening, the old gentleman [illegible] the distinguished crowd by picking up Assano by the [illegible] and then playfully [illegible] Japanese heels Think of the flower of the Japanese aristocracy being treated in such a manner But he did not seem to mind it Perhaps it appeared to him only another queer social custom of this benighted land

The German Legation is represented by four members only one of whom is a naval attache Von Schlozer the Minister who came here in August 1871 is a man of exceedingly simple tastes and a thorough German in appearance He has the air of a man born and [illegible] under an iron system which had never let him tread outside the path of routine The Legation is made up of old bachelors

The Argentine Republic is represented by one official who is absent The Belgian Legation consists of three officials Mr Delfosse the Minister is a distinguished looking man who was here in the capacity of Minister Resident for nine years before he was raised to the rank of Minister in 187[illegible] Mr Borges, the Brazilian Minister is a wealthy man married, and lives in good style Mr Gonzalez the Chilian Charge d Affaires is a young gentleman nephew of the President of Chili, and not remarkable for anything except reticence Mr Flores Minister of Ecuador, came here in 1870 His wife, a lady of Cuban parentage is one of the handsomest women in Washington Mr Stephen Preston, the Haytian Minister, has about an eighth of African blood in his veins, He has a white wife He is not very well liked by Mr Fish on account of his alleged officiousness in the San Domingo matter But he is a very able, courteous gentleman Count Corti, the Italian Minister a bachelor, is a little pugnacious-looking man of an exceedingly testy temper He is at present in Europe on leave of absence, and will not probably return There is only one other member of the Italian Legation Count Zonnini Mr Mariscal, the Mexican Minister, is more Republican in his sentiments and habits than any of the diplomats He is a Spaniard with a slight dash of the Indian in his looks, but is thoroughly American in his manners His wife is a handsome American lady One Secretary and his wife complete Mr Mariscal's Legation Mr Bernhard de Westenberg who was once thought to be a confirmed old bachelor, will marry shortly an American widow, prominent in society circles Col Freyre, the Peruvian Minister, now absent in Europe, is said to be as inexhaustibly rich as the gold mines of his native Peru Mr Eduardo Villena First Secretary, is Charge d Affaires in his absence.

The two representatives of Sweden and Norway, Mr Stenerson, the Minister and Mr Grip the Secretary are two magnificent Goths and great favorites everywhere Turkey is this year represented by Aristarchi Bey, a Greek Baltazzi Effendi, his Secretary, is also a Greek and a bachelor The third member of the Legation is the only Mohammedan representative.

Galib Ali, a promising young man of twenty-two has four wives at home and is ready to add to the number if he finds any anxious to become fifth and sixth in his affections.

Mr Martin the representative of Colombia together with his family Secretary of Legation and attache, is absent So the Colombia Legation may at present be considered non est Guatamala and San Salvador have the same representative Mr Dardon who lives in New York Nicaragua is at present unrepresented Mr Schaeffelin, the Charge d' Affaires of Liberia, is as great a mystery as Yano's wife It is not even known by his diplomatic colleagues whether he is an African or a Caucasian He has never been seen in Washington is supposed to reside in Yonkers N Y Denmark is represented by Mr Landencrone, a distinguished looking gentleman, whose date of arrival here is Jan 22, 1873.

The Coffee Trade

From Rouse's Circular for February in regard to the supply and trade in this commodity we extract the following As regards the prospects of supply for 1874 we have in the first place to notice a deficiency in the Ceylon crop now coming forward of fully 20 000 tons, as compared with 1872-3. Secondly a deficiency of [illegible] 000 tons in the quantity to be received from [illegible] the current half year In the seven months from November 9th 1872 to the [illegible]th of June 187[illegible] [illegible]00 000 bags were exported from Rio to Europe and [illegible] 000 to the States a total of 1,[illegible] 000 bags whereas the quantity available for export from the 30th of November last to the 30th of June next will, owing to the small crop, probably not reach 800,000 bags of which the States will require at least 600 000 Thirdly the Java crop will also be short, the latest official estimate being 609,000 bags, against 1 065 000 in the previous season but this will not materially affect the quantity to be offered at the Dutch sales as the Trading Company hold a larger stock in Holland than last year The position of Coffee is undoubtedly very strong we must however expect great fluctuations pending the arrival of adequate supplies prices are likely to go still higher but a few months hence if the Brazil crop of 1874 should turn out favorably we may experience a sharp reaction

Eleven Wheat States

Below we give a table showing the estimated production of wheat in the eleven great wheat growing States of the West from which it will be seen that [illegible] with [illegible] comparatively [illegible] ranks as [illegible] in the list

[illegible] MOMENT OF [illegible]

The tumult caused by the death of Chang the hurry and noise in sending for the doctor and for Chang's wife and children must have so terribly shocked Eng that his nervous system became completely prostrated, and [illegible] never uttered a word except the single expression heretofore reported in the Herald "[illegible] must die too"

WHAT THE PHYSICIAN FOUND

Two hours from the discovery of Chang's death Drs William H Hollingsworth and [illegible] arrived only to find the twins dead

Correspondent—How long do you think [illegible] had been dead when you arrived

Dr Hollingsworth—Not more than [illegible] fifteen minutes

Correspondent—Do you think his death was caused by any vital connection or arteries passing from one to the other through the ligament that united them?

Dr Hollingsworth—I am confident [illegible] Eng's death was produced by [illegible] such [illegible]

Correspondent—Do you not believe the existence of some such vital connection through the ligament?

Dr Hollingsworth—I do not because I have attended them when one was sick and the other in good health and when there was as much as twenty beats difference to the minute in their pulsation

THE SHOCK TO ENG

Correspondent—What then in your opinion caused Eng's death

Dr Hollingsworth—The great shock [illegible] terror inspired by such a union with death added to which was the belief which prevailed between them that when one died the other would [illegible] These combined to destroy his mental faculties and paralyze his physical energies and he succumbed to the dread visitation

Correspondent—You would not think [illegible] that if the ligament had been severed his [illegible] would have been saved?

Dr Hollingsworth—I [illegible] think that any operation [illegible] performed [illegible] upon the discovery of Chang's death would have [illegible]
